

Roanoke Training Schedule

August 6 – 7, 2004

Instructional Track

Research-based Reading Instruction for Volunteer Literacy Programs

Through the use of a “hands on/minds on” approach, participants will deepen their understanding of the role of phonemic awareness and letter/sound relationships in learning to read and will learn techniques to evaluate what learners already know. Participants will also explore instructional strategies for developing vocabulary, fluency, and comprehension strategies. This workshop will also provide an overview of the current research on adult reading instruction.

Amy R. Trawick

*Coordinator, Equipped for the Future Reading Project
North Wilkesboro, NC*

Management Track

Program Management for Data Collection

These sessions will examine processes for data collection, reporting, and analysis. We will look at how data that is collected can be used for program improvement. Tips and processes will be shared to identify ways in which programs can better support and manage students while meeting National Reporting System standards and requirements.
